J-Quiz Winners Reflect on Trip to D.C.

National Japan Bowl Participants from Minnesota High Schools

High school students studying Japanese from all over the United States, including three excellent teams representing Minnesota who previously won the J-Quiz, converged on Washington, D.C. for the 2016 National Japan Bowl on April 14th and 15th. It has been a highlight of the trip for many of our J-Quiz winners. This year's students wrote the following comments about their trip to Washington D.C.:

"The trip to Washington D.C. was definitely a huge learning experience for me because it was the first time I had ever gone on a trip to such an independent extent. Not only did I learn a lot about Japan during the competition but I also learned how important it is to be responsible in a group because things like being late affects not only you but everyone else in the group. The most memorable event for me would be taking pictures in the Washington Monument area because I felt like it was when everyone in the group started to open up to each other more. At the competition, I was fortunate enough to be able to make new friends from Virginia who were extremely kind to us and we even exchanged our information to keep in touch. Throughout the trip I felt that I have gotten to know my teacher a lot better as well. I will treasure the time I had to bond with her greatly because she is a really kind person that I look up to and I am really thankful and happy I was able to meet someone like her. The competition also opened up my eyes that there are many talented people around the country and I must work harder in studying Japanese in order to not lose to them."

-Amelia Li

"During my trip on to Washington D.C., it was probably the best experience in my entire life. It was my first time on a plane and also going to Washington D.C. I believe that I was given this opportunity to go in eighth grade but, it was super expensive and cost almost up to two-thousand dollars and I couldn't afford it. Luckily Mazda and other companies sponsored us and I'm grateful for them to have the honor of receiving such a rare gift. I've never competed in a language quiz bowl before and it's also my first time as a second level Japanese language student to participate in this."

President Obama's Visit to Hiroshima

President Obama, from NTN News

President Obama will become the first sitting American president to visit Hiroshima, Japan on May 27th. This will be a significant visit due to the historical importance it holds. The visit serves as a coda to the transformation in the relationship between the United States and Japan. Benjamin J. Rhodes, President Obama's deputy national security adviser for strategic communication, stated that "He will not revisit the decision to use the atomic bomb at the end of World War II." Instead, President Obama will be focusing the visit to Japan and the United States as a forward-looking vision for the future of the two countries working together. Prime Minister Shinzo Abe of Japan shows no signs of pressing for an apology. Instead, he would like the visit to honor the dead and to support the cause of nuclear disarmament. Prime Minister Abe stated that "Japan is the only country to be hit by a nuclear weapon, and we have a responsibility to make sure that terrible experience is never repeated anywhere." President Obama also shares these goals as he often speaks of hope for a world without nuclear weapons.

In Washington D.C., I thought that every moment was the best part of the trip such as touring the Lincoln Memorial and Chinatown. It was also my first time riding the metro using the metro cards to go from place to place on the subway and buses. Another fun opportunity was to see the famous art director of Kyary Pamyu Pamyu, and Sebastian Masuda. It's too bad I couldn't ask for his autograph even though I sat two rows behind him but I was too nervous to ask. I also met some new friends there that are from Lake Braddocks High school in Virginia, they were really cool people and we even exchanged information such as phone numbers and snapchat. Overall it was a fun experience even with all the motion sickness, getting sunburnt, getting sick afterwards and missing 4 days of school in a row but, it was all worth it because I've never won something big as going into national competition before and I consider this as a special memorable moment and hope to win Japan Bowl next year as a third level student with the same team members."

Nichibei Lecture Series: "Open Heart Surgery and Prevention of Heart Disease"

Dr. Rochus K. Voeller, MD was born in Tokyo, Japan. He is currently the director of cardio thoracic surgery at Fairview Southdale hospital and also assistant professor of surgery under division of cardio thoracic surgery of the University of Minnesota Medical School.

Dr. Voeller describes heart surgery as a complicated task that requires team work and precision. The heart is the most vital organ of the body and the hardest working muscle in the body. He also talked about the first successful operation on the heart which was performed by Dr. Daniel H Williams (1856 -1931). Over time the development of the heart-lung machine was created alongside the operation on the draining of the heart. The current state of cardiac surgery includes many things such as coronary revascularization, valve repairs/replacements, aortic surgery, arrhythmia surgery, heart failure surgery, and congenital heart surgery. Coronary artery disease (ischemic heart disease) is currently the number one killer in the US. Some of the risk factors to coronary artery disease are: genetics, obesity, hyperlipidemia, diabetes, and smoking. The treatments to Coronary artery disease are: Medicaid, percutaneous (stenting), and surgery (bypass surgery (CABG)).

Dr. Voeller also talked about what causes heart disease and how one can prevent this disease. Obesity, smoking, diabetes, hyperlipidemia, hypertension, and stress/type A personality traits can all contribute to heart disease. To prevent heart disease one should control fats, obesity, blood pressure, diabetes, smoking, and exercise regularly. Dr. Voeller mentioned how prevention is cheaper and easier than treatment. What does heart surgery look like in the future? Dr. Voeller described it as a field that will be high in demand due to the continuously aging population and the decreased mortality over decades of experience. Dr. Voeller said that his field is that of an exciting one and that Europe and Japan's technology has advanced greatly that they are no longer behind the US. Nichibei Lecture Series is aimed at promoting the relationship between the US and Japan. This week's Nichibei Lecture Series consisted of the awareness of health and how to lead a healthy lifestyle. We greatly appreciate Dr. Voeller participating in our Nichibei Lecture Series and providing insightful information on heart disease and heart surgery.

Corporate Roundtable Presents Differences in Business Cultures in Japan and Korea

Speaker Steve Dickinson

The Corporate Roundtable program on May 11 featured a presentation on "Comparing Business Approaches Between Japan and Korea". The talk was given by Steve Dickinson, International Lawyer for Fredrikson & Byron, P.A. Mr. Dickinson started the presentation with information that included import/export data on both Japan and Korea and their trade relationships with Minnesota. For example, the data indicated that Japan serves as a larger trading country with Minnesota as the 4th largest trading partner and the Republic of Korea ranks as 7th in trade with Minnesota.

Mr. Dickinson also mentioned that there are many similarities in trade relations. Both Japan and Korea greatly depend on exports for their economies. Exports from Minnesota to both countries include, agricultural products, computer and electronic products and medical equipment. For their part, Japan and Korea export electronic products to the U.S. Some differences exist. Korea is not part of the Trans Pacific Partnership. Korea's largest trade partner is China and this is a factor in proceeding further in these talks.

Mr. Dickinson mentioned important cultural similarities between Japan and Korea. He said both countries have homogeneous societies in which developing personal relationships are important in doing business to be successful. Respect for age and position are important in building these relationships. Some differences are important as well. There is more attention to process and order in conducting business in Japan. In Korea, people are usually more direct in expressing disagreement. Mr. Dickinson cautioned that these are stereotypes and generalizations often do not apply in individual situations.

Following the presentation, there was discussion concerned with legal aspects of doing business in both countries. Mr. Dickinson mentioned the fact that legal representation has become important in both Japan and Korea. U.S. law firms are now able to practice law in Japan. In South Korea, U.S. firms must work with a Korean law firm, although this may change in the future. Steve Dickinson gave an informative presentation on the business approaches to Japan and Korea for Minnesota companies. JASM also wishes to thank Fredrikson & Byron, P.A. for hosting this event.

International Children's Day

The Turkish American Society of Minnesota hosted the Annual International Children Festival on May 15th at the University of Minnesota in the Coffman Theatre. This festival had many different children groups representing different cultures/countries by performing music, dancing, display of photos, crafts, and ornaments that represented their countries. They also had numerous cultural games and face paintings for all to enjoy. Representing Japan was the Sansei Yonsei Kai who performed a beautiful dance called “Sakura” with Japanese fans and colorful Kimonos. The Japanese fans and Kimonos also matched the theme of the light pink color of the cherry blossom. JASM is pleased to report on a great show performed by talented children. We hope to see more performances of this kind in the future.

JASM interviewed Tomoko Taniguchi who was a featured speaker on Manga. She also creates trading cards of Star Wars. Here is what Ms. Taniguchi had to say about the convention: “It is the first time that I participated in a convention that emphasizes charity to support the community...Also I am very honored to be a part of this convention to help the students who would like to study abroad in Japan...It is always encouraging to meet with my fans, and other people from the same industry. But at this event, it was so great to speak with people who are truly looking forward to seeing my work. It motivates me so much to keep doing what I do.”

New JASM Intern: Sofie Hisakuni

Hello, my name is Sofie Hisakuni and I am the new media relations coordinator. I am currently a senior at the University of Minnesota, Twin Cities. I am studying business and marketing with a minor in Japanese.

While I was born in Japan, I moved to the United States when I was 11. I love the Japanese culture and especially the food. I hope to travel back to Japan with my family when I graduate from college in the spring. I would love to either visit Okinawa or Kyoto since I hear they are both beautiful places. In the fall I will be part of the Japan Student Association as the leader for fundraising. I am very excited for this opportunity and to meet fellow Japanese students on campus. I look forward to working with Japan America Society of Minnesota!

Tom Haeg's Book Review: Japan Restored

Japan Restored; Clyde Prestowitz; 2015, Tuttle Publishing; 287 pages.

In Japan Restored: How Japan Can Reinvent Itself and Why this is important for America and the World, the author, Clyde Prestowitz, a self-admitted Nipponophile, cleverly lays out an economic formula for Japan to regain global supremacy by 2050.

Prestowitz is no detached futurist. He has boots on the ground. He speaks fluent Japanese, worked in Japan as a consultant for American companies, served as a CEO of the Japan branch of a major U.S. medical equipment company and adopted a Japanese daughter. He knows his subject and has the academic credentials to prognosticate. He embraces several disciplines, -history, sociology, economics and politics, in arguing that the pall reposing in Japan since the end of the 20th century up to 2015 was just a mere blip. He cites Japan's intrinsic strengths in its demographics (Chapter 4, Women to the Rescue), language (Chapter 5, Japan Becomes an English-Speaking Country), entrepreneurial spirit (Chapter 6, Innovation Nation), energy modernization (Chapter 7, Energy Independence) and abolition of the madogiwazoku (Chapter 9, Overthrow of the Insiders), and more, to cogently conclude 'Why Japan Matters to America and World'.

While a lot of baggage must certainly be jettisoned to achieve the 2050 goals, Japan Restored believes that two cultural traits must not be sacrificed for Japan to achieve its 2050 target, -kaizen (continuous improvement) and kanban (just-in-time production). These twin disciplines are absolutely essential for Japan to remain a dynamic and admired force in the global economy. Stay tuned.

-Tom Haeg
